

Somewhere, in your community, a mother is dreaming of reading her children a bedtime story, imagining that she then tucks them in and turns out the light of their very own room. And somewhere, closer than you might realize, a father yearns to build a better life for his family, to raise the walls that will raise the bar on what their tomorrows can be.

However you support Habitat, that's exactly what you help make possible for homeowners around the world. You help them claim the strength, stability and self-reliance they need to claim a brighter future.

Every day that a family works toward their Habitat home, and every day that they help build their Habitat home, and every day that they see come to a close in their Habitat home is a day of empowerment and opportunity.

Thank you for helping make this a reality for more families around the world. Thank you for helping them come home.
